

With todays technology, there has to be a better way to serve the deaf community in terms of modern technology and service.

I have come to understand a company called Snap Telecommunications offers a "videophone" with both standard and modern features making it the most functional and advanced telecommunications device on the market.

The FCC has the ability to implement a solution the deaf community desires that also provides equal access, and a phone company like SNAP Telecommunications must be allowed to participate in the public market.

The FCC must allow a phone company like SNAP to offer its technology to the marketplace and let the marketplace determine the merit of the technology and service. In fact, the FCC needs to allow more competition in video rely marketplace.

I implore the FCC to allow competitive products and solutions to the marketplace, and a product like SNAP rely seems to be the technology that will make a difference in the lives of people.
